

Jeanette Leuers was born in 1942 in London, England. During the sixties she studied fine arts at the Chelsea School of Art with tutors destined to become some of the best known fine artists of today. For many years Jeanette and her husband restored antique oil paintings for London Galleries until, finally, she branched out on her own as a full-time painter.

During the next three years, her paintings, often depicting children in rural settings in an impressionistic manner, have been widely sold throughout Britain and the United States to a growing following of collectors and dealers. Many have been reproduced as greeting cards.

Jeanette lives with her husband in the beautiful hills of Mid Wales.
